Questioned Document Examiner Letter

Subject: Christine Brigman-Tuzi

Date: July 28, 2017

I have examined one (1) document with the known handwriting and signature of Christine Brigman-Tuzi. For the purpose of this examination I have labeled this exhibit 'K1'.

Today I have compared the handwriting and signature of Christine Brigman-Tuzi on the 'K' document to the signatures on the questioned documents, identified herein as 'Q1' through 'Q3', to determine if the author of the handwriting and signature on the 'K' document was the same person who authored the name of Christine Brigman and Christine Tuzi on the questioned documents: Three (3) typed notes/letters purportedly signed by Christine Brigman and Christine Tuzi.

An examination of handwriting includes establishing patterns of writing habits to help identify the author. Handwriting is formed by repeated habits of writing by the author, which are created by neuro-pathways established in the brain. These neuro-pathways control muscular and nerve movement for writing, whether the writing done is by the hand, foot or mouth.

In support of my opinion, I have included an excerpt from Handwriting Identification, Facts and Fundamentals by Roy A. Huber and A.M. Headrick (CRC Press LLC, 1999, pp 50-51) wherein the leading forefathers of document examination in the USA agree that one significant difference in the fundamental structure of a writing compared to another is enough to preclude common authorship:

[Ordway] Hilton stated: "It is basic axiom of identification in document problems that a limited number of basic differences, even in the face of numerous strong similarities, are controlling and accurately establish nonidentity."

[Wilson R.] Harrison made similar comments: "...the fundamental rule which admits of no exception when handwritings are being compared...is simple – whatever features two specimens of handwriting may have in common, they cannot be considered to be of common authorship if they display but a single consistent dissimilarity in any feature which is fundamental to the structure of the handwriting, and whose presence is not capable of reasonable explanation."

[James V.P.] Conway expressed the same theme when he wrote: "A series of fundamental agreements in identifying individualities is requisite to the conclusion that two writings were authored by the same person, whereas a single fundamental difference in an identifying individuality between two writings precludes the conclusion that they were executed by the same person."

and finally,

[Albert S.] Osborn and others have generally agreed that despite numerous similarities in two sets of writings, a conclusion of identify cannot be made if there is one or more differences in fundamental features of the writings.

Based upon thorough analysis of these items, and from an application of accepted forensic document examination tools, principles and techniques, it is my professional expert opinion that a different person or persons authored the name of Christine Brigman and Christine Tuzi on the questioned documents. Someone did indeed forge the signature of Christine Brigman-Tuzi on the questioned documents 'Q1', 'Q2' and 'Q3'.

I am willing to testify to this fact in a court of law and I will provide exhibits to the Court showing that I had sufficient data and that my opinion is correct. My Curriculum Vitae is attached and incorporated herein by reference.

Respectfully submitted,

Curt Baggett
